CHALLENGES

Cost-cutting is everywhere nowadays. Sometimes it's done well, and sometimes it ends up harming productivity. The best type of cost-cutting is the type that people don't notice, and that doesn't reduce service value. Print management can be one of those magic wands where you can slash costs without hurting anyone's productivity (or even sometimes make it better). Not only that, you might get some surprise cost savings. It all starts by asking a question: "Do I really need to print that email in color?" or "Want to print that double-sided instead?"
